ABOUT THE HOUSE

The grand portal and stained glass vestibule of Metropolitan Home's Showtime House will welcome thousands of visitors this fall to 23 Gramercy Park South.

The double parlor of this rare four-story Greek Revival townhouse provides a dramatic setting where Showtime House guests will gather. From there, they will embark on an unforgettable tour of grandly proportioned rooms transformed into visionary modernist spaces by talented designers Jamie Drake, Tori Golub, Laura Kirar, Amy Lau, White Webb and Vicente Wolf.

Original architectural details such as pristine hardwood floors, marble mantelpieces, mahogany doors and cornice moldings will ground these inspired spaces, juxtaposing the elegance of antiquity with dynamic, modern flare. A breathtaking eight-foot-wide, oval-shaped, glass dome rests above the original grand staircase, bathing the house with natural sunlight.

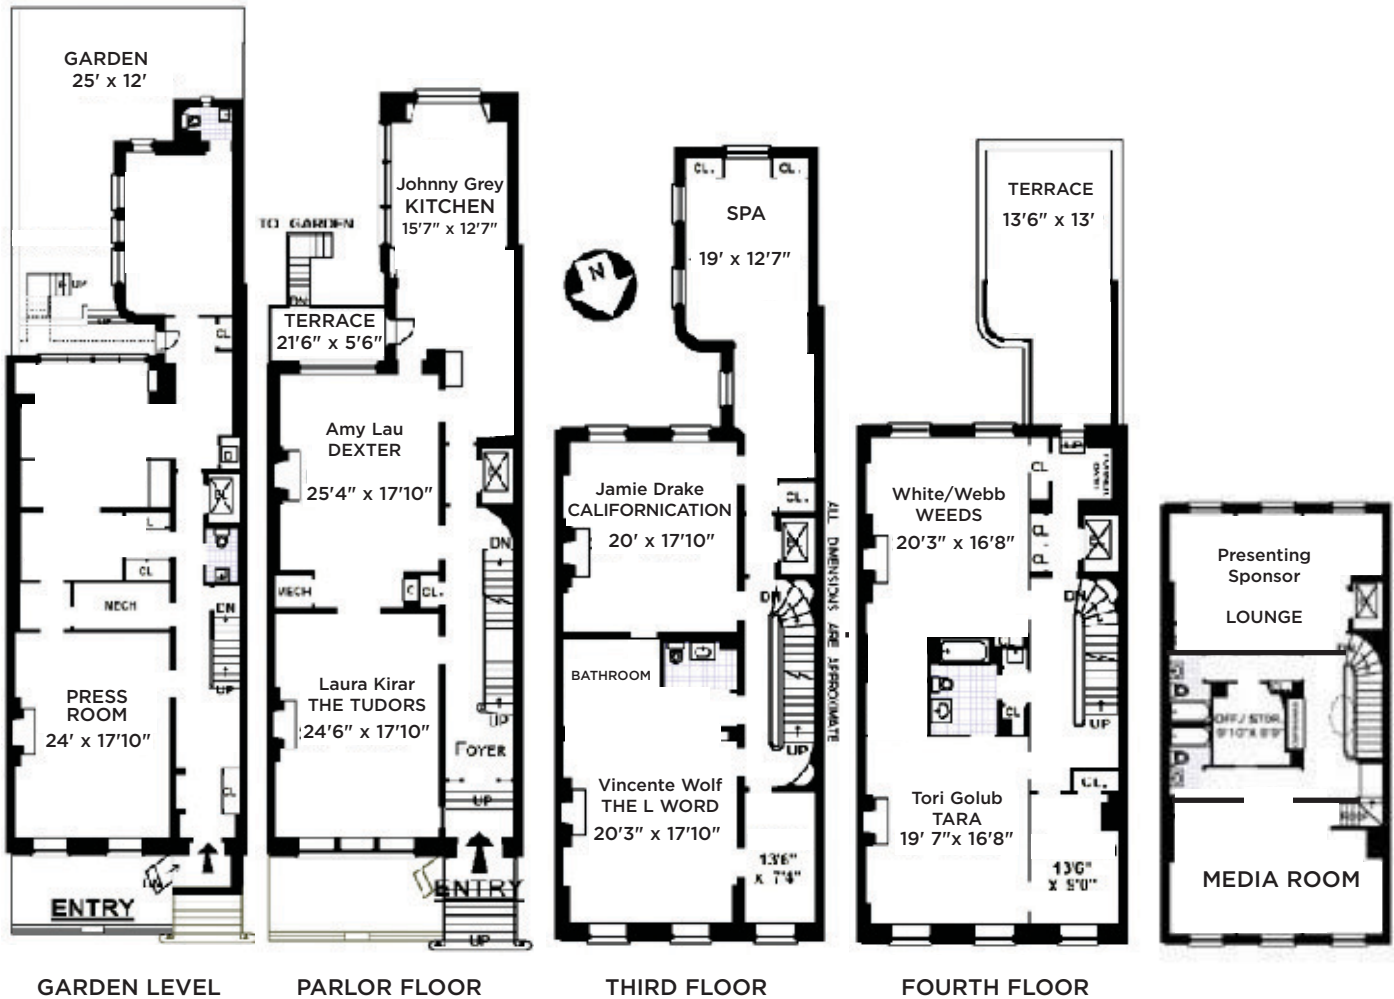

Built in 1847, this stunning townhouse neighbors one of New York City's most beautiful and exclusive parks. The home has its own verdant garden that is accessible from under the front stoop or the rear courtyard.
